TAKE SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

For all Diseases of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Spleen.

This purely vegetable preparation, now so celebrated as a Family Medicine, originated in the South in 1828. It acts gently on the Bowels and Kidneys and corrects the action of the Liver, and is, therefore, the best preparatory medicine, whatever the sickness may prove to be. In all common diseases it will, unassisted by any other medicine, effect a speedy cure.

The Regulator is safe to administer in any condition of the system, and under no circumstances can it do harm. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage to lead to intemperance; will promote digestion, dissipate headache, and generally tone up the system. The dose is small, not unpleasant, and its virtues undoubted.

No loss of time, no interruption or stoppage of business while taking the Regulator.

Children complaining of Colic, Headache, or Sick Stomach, a teaspoonful or more will give relief.

If taken occasionally by patients exposed to MALARIA, will expel the poison and protect them from attack.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system. THE FIGHT AT THE FARM HOUSE.

An Incident of the Zulu War.

A party of five horsemen well armed and mounted, though the state of their horses showed they had been ridden hard, were proceeding at a pace in the direction of Ladysmith, in the Colony of Natal. Behind them lay the bleak plateau of Helpmakaar, and beyond that again, the steep, precipitous defile that led to Rorke's Drift.

The party consisted of Major Maitland, of the 24th Regiment; Lieut. Cochrane, of the 23d: Dr. Goodeve, a civilian medical practioner, doing duty with the troops; the principal medical officer, Surgeon-General Andrews; and Capt. Ferrars of the Natal Mounted Police, who had been wounded in the action of Isandhlwana.

Night was comming on, and they were on the look out for some place to put up at.

'We cannot go much futher,' said Major Maitland, pulling up his horse. 'I wish we could get shelter somewhere for the night. The rain is increasing, and it will be pitch dark in ten minutes. You know this part, Willie,' he added addressing Lieut. Cochrane; 'ride on and see if there is any sign of a house.'

'There used to be a farm about here,' was the reply. 'The light is not sufficient to make out its whereabouts, but I'll have a try.'

'I don't think Captain Ferrars will be able to go much further, sir,' said Dr. Goodeve, coming up. 'He's been reeling in the saddle for the last few miles, and I'm afraid the bandages have become loosened.'

'I think I remember passing a house, somewhere in this direction, on my way up,' observed Dr. Andrews. 'At all events let us dismount and try if we can dicover it. Poor Ferrar is, I am afraid, in a bad way.'

The rain by this time was coming down in torrents, and the party, leading their horses through the darkness that had followed the last streak of departing daylight, went plodding along up to their knees in mud.

After they had proceeded some distance, Captain Ferrars, who was supported by the two doctors, begged to be allowed to rest. 'It's no use,' he said, faintly. 'I think I'm done for. Don't take any more trouble. Thank you all very much for your kindness.—Dr. Andrews,' he whispered, 'there's a pocket book inside my jacket; please take it and give it to my wife. And—' he added, faltering, 'she would like a lock of my hair, if you can manage it by-and-by.'

'Keep up your spirits, Ferrars,' said Major Maitland, cheerily; 'you'll be all right if you can get a little rest. Cochrane has just discovered a ruined kraal, which he remembers was in the vicinity of Boshoff's Farm, and we may soon hope to reach a place of shelter.'

He was answered by a deep sigh.

They proceeded through the thick mud for some time, while the rain continued to pour down pitilessly, and the outlook was getting a little dismal, when a shout from Lieut. Cochrane, informed them that they were on the right track.

After making their way through a thick plantation they reached a house, and soon scrambled on to the stoop. No answer was returned to their repeated shouts.

'Try the door, Cochrane,' said Major Maitland; we must get inside somehow.'

'I have been all around the house, sir, and every entry has been barred up,' he replied.

'Then we must force the door. Bring here a couple of rifles.'

'Don't do that,' said Dr. Andrews. 'It's an invasion of private property and might get us into trouble. The Duke of Wellington would have hanged one for less. Here's a small square window: could not someone get in by that?'

'Never mind, doctor; the dear old Duke is not here now, so we must take our chance. As for the window, it might be possible for an acrobat to manage the feat, but I doubt anyone here being able to do so.'

A half-dozen blows from the butt end of a rifle soon knocked away the fastenings of the door, which had only been barred across from the inside; and the party entered.

Some matches were procured and a light struck, which disclosed the usual sitting-room of a Dutch farmer. Some home-made candles were hanging on a string against the wall, a couple of which they cut off and lit, and then proceeded to explore their surroundings.

The occupant had evidently left in a very great hurry. A Dutch clock was ticking solemnly in a corner; there were plates, knives and forks, dishes and saucepans, salt, pepper, et hoc genus omne lying about, 'in most admired disorder.' And there was also a substantial sofa, which was at once utilized for Captain Ferrars.

In the kitchen was their greatest 'find,' a large pile of cut firewood, and a bag of flour. A good fire was at once prepared, and Captain Ferrars on the sofa placed in its vicinity.

'Has anyone got a drop of spirits of any sort?' enquired Dr. Goodeve. 'I've given Ferrars the last drop in my flask.' But unfortunately none could be produced. 'It's unlucky,' said the kind-hearted medico; 'a little brandy would be priceless to Ferrars just now.

'Let us do the best we can,' said the major, 'and collect all the edibles we have amongst us, in order to knock up a meal of some sort.'

'Hullo!' said Lieut. Cochrane, 'what's that?' as a sound struck on his ears.

'It's uncommonly like the cackle of a goose,' said Maj. Maitland. 'If the guileless bird has been obliging enough to put in an appearance, he must, I regret to say, suffer on account of his confiding natura. I suppose they omitted to carry him away with the rest of the live stock.'

Lieut. Cochrane, who had established himself as head cook, took his rifle and passed out to the rear of the building.

Presently a shot was heard, and in a few moments that warrior returned holding a fine goose by the neck.

This was welcomed with a shout of approval, and the other contributions were a packet of compressed tea from Dr. Andrews, a sausage from the major, and a tin of Van Houten's chocolate from Lieut. Cochrane: the latter condiment being reserved for Captain Ferrars, who had by this time had his wound attended to, and his clothing dried.

In a little while, a by no means bad meal (under the circumstances) was turned out. The goose after being plucked—in which operation all assisted—was boiled in a thick casing of paste made from the flour found in the house, from which also were constructed some dumplings of a rather primitive kind, enclosing the major's sausage chopped up small. This, aided by a decoction of the compressed tea, put a life into the weary, washed out party, poor Captain Ferrars even rallying to the occasion.

Their clothes having by this time been dried, some little warmth began to pervade their limbs, and they commenced casting about for a spot to sleep in, when they were started by loud shouts in front of the house.

Major Maitland went to the door, and cautiously opening it, asked who was there.

'A friend,' was the reply. 'For Heaven's sake let me in. I am pursued by Zulus, and have had a bad fall jumping the fence in the dark. My horse is staked, and I fear the poor beast must be dead by this time.'

They immediately went to his assistance and helped him on to the stoop.

'Why it's Bridgman of the Commissariat!' said Lieut. Cochrane, coming forward.

'Yes! I've had a narrow squeak, I assure you. I left Dundee this afternoon and lost my way. As the light was failing I came upon a lot of Zulus, who let fly a shower of assegais, and also fired several shots, missing me, though, I am thankful to say. Ramming in the spurs, I rode off without thinking much of where I was going, and managed to give the devils the slip in the dark, making for where I saw your lights. I daresay you will receive a visit from them, for they will be attracted by the lights, as I was.'

'Out with the light,' said Major Maitland, rapidly. 'Slack down the fire, put all the spare coats against the windows, knock a loop-hole or two in the doors and windows, put one saddle in the small window, from behind which one man can fire, and pile the remainder on the stoop, in front of the door. Lucky we have plenty of ammunition! Go out, Cochrane, and let the horses loose on the veldt; they'll stand no chance, pent up in the stable, should we be attacked.'

'Bridgman, have you any brandy? Ferrars, of the Mounted Police, is here, badly hurt, and we have no stimulant to give him.'

'I've a flask untouched. It was filled before leaving Dundee, and I've not had a chance of opening it since.'

'Bravo!' said Dr. Andrews; 'that's capital. I hope we shall be able to pull Ferrars through, after all.'

Everyone now betook him to the post to which he had been allotted and silently awaited events.

They had hardly placed themselves, when a most infernal yelling was heard outside, followed by a volley of musketry, and then the patter of bare feet on the stoop.

Waiting until he thought he could make the most effectual use of his small force, the major directed that no shot was to be fired without of his word of command.

As the stoop became crowded, and others thronged round the house, his voice rang out, 'Ready! Fire!'

The five rifles poured their fire through the improvised loop-holes, into the dense mass round the house, and the stoop was cleared like magic; on which there followed a dead silence.

After an interval of some minutes, a harsh voice, speaking in Zulu, was heard giving orders, followed by what appeared to be words of command; then a rush of a body of men, who hurled themselves upon the door, which gave way with a crash.

'All to the door!' shouted the major, and the next instant they were in hand to hand conflict with the foremost Zulus. Those who succeeded in entering were instantly shot down, and flung back upon the others, forming a sort of rampart to the defenders, who, their eyes being more accustomed to the light, could better discern their opponent.

This melee continued for some long time, but the darkness was so intense that the Zulus became doubtful and wavered. One had got hold of Captain Bridgman's rifle by the muzzle, and was trying to wrench it from him. 'Hold on, Johnny,' he said, coolly; 'I'll talk to you in a minute,' and managed to insert a cartridge in his breech-loader. Then pulling the trigger without moving the rifle from his hip, the Zulu fell back dead.

The known aversion of the native warrior to enter buildings or works of any kind when fighting—though he fears nothing in the open—caused them again to retire on finding so stubborn a resistance; and the little party had time to replace the door, which they secured with the tough reims taken from the frames of the bedsteads, and were enabled to take breath.

All this time, Captain Ferrars was helplessly moaning at his inability to join in the fight.

'Is any one hurt?' said the major, looking round.

'I've been hit,' replied Dr. Goodeye, 'but I don't think it's much. A Zulu struck me in the side with his assegai, just as we drove them out.'

'Come to the kitchen fire,' said Dr. Andrews, 'and let me look at it.'

'Oh, I am all right, he remarked, but at that moment he reeled and fell.

'Get a light and hide it as much as possible; stand round, everyone,' said Dr. Andrews.

'Is he coming round?' whispered the major.

'He is dead!' answered the doctor, solemnly.

It is a remarkable fact that, though he had received a mortal wound, he had continued to speak and act as though nothing were the matter with him; ultimately expiring with out a pang.

Having placed poor Dr. Goodeve carefully in one of the bed-rooms, they once again proceeded to take measures for their own safety.

Stealthy sounds outside prepared them for another attempt on the part of their enemies, the nature of which they were soon made aware.

A flickering light in the direction of an out house at the back, called their attention in that direction, and they soon saw it was the intention to burn them out. As the light increased, they comprehended what had been done: a large store of firewood stacked in the outhouse was in a blaze, and burning brands from thence were being brought and laid round the house.

'Pick off every man who appoaches,' said the major. 'All fire now independently.'

The figures of the Zulus became now perfectly distinct in the light, and those inside were able to pick off man after man with unerring precision. At length they appeared to come to the conclusion that owing to the heavy rain that had fallen, the attempt to fire the house would not succeed, so they again retired to re-arrange their plan of attack.

It turned out that the light from the burning wood-stack was of great service to the little garrison, as it enabled them to see the movements of their adversaries while they themselves were in shadow: waiting in some anxiety to know what would be the next move, feeling that their position was becoming critical, and unless the firing attracted some party, proceeding to, or returning from the front, they must make up their minds for the worst.

Looking round, the major said: 'If it comes to a last stand we'll make it in this small room,' pointing to one of the sitting-rooms. 'The door is narrow and we can hold it while the amunition lasts; after that, do the best we can with clubbed rifles. Our only chance is to hold out, in case the firing should be heard by our friends.'

Captain Ferrars was moved into the room indicated and all made ready for the final struggle.

Everything was quiet for a considerable time, and a faint hope was beginning to dawn that their foes had given the business up and retired.

Presently a shot was heard, and then came a rush like a whirlwind, hoarse yells and words of command; the doors both back and front were attacked and the house trembled with the shock.

'Keep cool, everyone. Keep your eye upon the doors, and when they enter, pour into the thick of 'em; then make for the small room.'

The house seemed to rock from the force that was brought against it, while one Zulu had found out the little window at the side of the door, and was forcing his way in, head first. Captain Birdgman raised his rifle to fire.

'Steady a bit,' shouted the major; 'don't waste ammunition.' And stepping quickly forward, brought his clubbed rifle on the bare skull of the intruder, who fell head downwards, partly in and partly out of the window.

The doors at length gave way and in poured the enemy; one steady volley did good execution on the crowded mass, and then all made for the small room.

They fastened a bedstead across the lower part of the doorway, leaving the upper part open, and then the four men placed themselves well back, two on each side of the door, through which came showers of assegais; but the room was so favorably placed that the interior was in complete darkness, while the assailants were plainly visible.

One of the Zulu leaders outside was now heard shouting instructions, and after a little time, eight or ten men appeared with pieces of blazing wood, which threw a light upon the interior of the room, destroying the only chance of the defenders.

A native, bolder than the rest, got in over the obstacle at the door, but was soon despatched. Another and another, however, quickly followed. Major Maitland was wounded in two places. Captain Bridgman was shot in the mouth, Lieut. Cochrane was engaging a couple of gigantic Zulus, and, though wounded, managed to keep his assailants at bay. Dr. Andrews, cool and collected, and the only one unwounded, had taken to his revolver, and placing his back to the wall, against which Captain Ferrars had been placed for safety, and in front of that gentleman, successfully held his own.

Each one of the little party now felt that his last hour had come, but sternly determined to fight to the end. Just as the complete hopelessness of their position was forced upon them, there came a sharp volley of musketry from the outside, followed by a quick dropping fire, and then the welcome sound of English voices.

The Zulus turned to face their new enemies, but disheartened by the continued dropping of their comrades beside them, and not knowing the strength of the force they had to contend with, made up their minds to decamp, leaving the little garrison free; rescued literally from the jaws of death.

Foremost came the burley form of Piet Uys, the brave Dutchman, who had stood by the English from first to last, their true and loyal friend, followed by a tall man in cords and boots, and slouched hat of the irregular cavalry. This was Major Bettington, Commandant of "Bettington's Horse," one of the most dashing of partisan leaders, who with some specially selected men of his corps, constituted the relieving force.

Piet Uys, it appeared, had heard the firing at the commencement of the attack, and riding forward soon discovered how matters stood. He knew there was no force nearer than Helpmakaar, and that consisted only of infantry; but in the morning he had passed, proceeding from Ladysmith en route for Pietermaritzburg, "Bettington's Horse." Thinking over the chances, he made up his mind to ride, and, if possible, overtake Bettington, who, he calculated, would halt at "Currie's Post," between Bushman's Pass and the Umgani falls; and if he succeeded could conduct the party by a short cut across the country to the scene of action.

Acting promptly on this, he rode hard into Ladysmith, apprising the Resident Magistrate, Mr. Moody, of the Zulu attack, and then went at racing pace for "Currie's Post."

Mr. Moody at once organized a party to proceed on foot with stretchers and medical appliances for any that might be wounded, should the relieving force reach in time to be of use to the beleagured party.

Piet Uys succeeded in overtaking Bettington, as he hoped, and the latter, selecting fifty of his best mounted men, followed the gallant Dutchman across the country to the farm house, with the result already mentioned.

'Well, Maitland, I'm glad to see you safe,' said Bettington, shaking hands with him; 'though you all seem to be pretty well mauled.'

'Yes! it was a close shave, and I can't imagine how you came so opportunely—in the very nick of time.'

'For that you may thank my friend, Piet Uys,' he answered. 'If it had not been for his energetic and loyal action, you would all have been gathered to your fathers before this. However, "All's well that ends well." And now let us see what damage has been done.'

They first turned their attention to Captain Ferrars, who, poor fellow, was in a critical state, as a bullet, rebounding from the wall, had wounded him in the side; but they did all that could be done for him.

The day was now breaking, and a trooper was sent off to Ladysmith to explain the state of affairs.

Dr. Andrews addressed himself to the task of binding up the hurts of those that had been hit, and afterwards when the sun had risen, they all went out to take a look at the scene of the conflict.

The house and grounds had a forlorn and dismal appearance. The trim flower beds and kitchen garden trampled in mud, the doors pierced with bullet holes, the smouldering fire of the burning outhouse, all presented a very desolate outlook, while, in addition, there were lying about the bodies of forty or fifty dead Zulus. Many more must have been wounded, as traces of blood were subsequently followed up close to the Zulu border, which was not half an hour's walk from the house.

In the course of the day, carts and stretchers arrived, and the wounded were taken into Ladysmith, where also was conveyed the body of Dr. Goodeve for interment. There they were well cared for by the kind-hearted Resident Magistrate and, with the exception of Captain Ferrars, who was unable to be moved, were soon in a condition to proceed to their destination.

Piet Uys returned to his farm, only to meet his death later on, while bravely fighting by the side of Evelyn Wood (the man with the charmed life) at Zobiana Mountain, having previously received the decoration of C. M. G. for his courage and loyalty.

The other actors in this stirring little episode are still alive and well, with the exception of Major Bettington, who, died a year after, while in command of the mounted police in the West Indies, to which he had been appointed in recognition of his services during the Zulu campaign.

'Hallo, Maitland!' said a cheery voice, addressing that gentleman in the camp at Pine Town some months after the occurrences narrated here.

'What, Ferrars!' said the major, heartily shaking his hand. 'I am right glad to meet you, for I thought I had seen the last of you after that affair at Boshoff's Farm, but, thank God, you are all right again.'

'Yes, thank God!' said the other, reverently raising his hat.

Logan Not in Cameron's Debt.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—A story has been in circulation to the effect that Senator Cameron held a note against General Logan and would present it against the estate of the General for payment. Senator Cameron said to-day: "My attention has been called to a statement of my holding a note against General Logan. The story is a falsehood from beginning to end, as General Logan never owed me a dollar in his life. According to my knowledge of General Logan he always tried to live within his means and save something. He was not a borrowing man. He never borrowed anything from me."

There are three men in Wilmington who missed having rabbit for dinner on Thanksgiving Day under peculiar circumstances. An employe of a certain cemetery in this city has been wont to beguile his fellow-workmen with stories of the number of rabbits in the cemetery. Last Wednesday morning he bought a stuffed rabbit and placed it in the grass at the lower end of the cemetery. He told his friend that there was a big rabbit in that direction and he had better go after him. This son of Erin borrowed a gun and crept down to the spot indicated. Sure enough, there was the rabbit. He blazed away and knocked him over. Filled with delight he rushed to the spot, only to find that he had been deluded. He fixed the rabbit up and put him in the grass again and went after the superintendent. Now, the superintendent is very fond of stewed rabbit, and when he heard there was one in the lot he concluded that it would be a good side dish for the morrow. He in turn shot "Brer Rabbit" and experienced a similar sensation to that of the first hunter and said words a great deal stronger. The two sold mortals now combined to take in the fourth man employed about the grounds. This man set a snare for the rabbit, which he was assured haunted the spot indicated. That night the dilapidated bunny was placed in the snare. Early next morning the three were on the watch to see No. 4 get the rabbit. The result was such a storm of profanity that it utterly incapacitated him from eating any dinner at all.

There are three men in town whom it is not healthy to ask: "How do you like stewed rabbit stuffed with cotton?"

A Startling Fact.

I knew a gentleman who married a sweet and lovely girl. She was very devoted to him, and when she discovered his dissipated habits, she endeavored to shield him. When he stayed out at night, she would send the servants to bed, while she waited and watched for him; and then, in her night-dress and a pair of slippers on her feet, she would glide down very gently and let him in.

One night he came home late. The servants were in bed. The house had a front door, and then a marble vestibule, and then an inner door. She opened the one, stepped upon the cold marble, and opened the outer door. The drunken husband entered, seized her by the shoulders, swung her round, opened the inner door, quickly passed through, and locked it before his wife could enter. She would not speak or cry out, lest she should disgrace her husband before the servants.

In the morning she was found with her night-dress drawn under her feet, crouching in the corner, almost chilled to death. On her death-bed she told her father all about it, or the circumstances would never have been known. There is much that is never known, as well as a vast amount of misery and degradation that does crop out, and which is startling in its reality.—JOHN B. GOUGH.

MR. TOPNOODY sat with his wife by their reading table the other night in reflective silence with a book lying open and useless before him, and Mrs. T. was busy with a piece of that restful kind of needle work all women resort to as a mental and physical relief.

'My dear,' said Mr. Topnoody after awhile, 'if I were to die would you marry again?'

'Do you think of dying?' she asked, as if a new interest had come into life.

'No, my dear, not particularly, but it just occurred to me to ask the question.'

'Well, Topnoody, to be frank with you, I think I would.'

'Why, my dear, that is very inconsistent,' he said, in surprise.

'How?' she asked, sharply. 'I'm not unusually inconsistent, am I?'

'No, my dear, but in this you are, for you are always railing against married life, and regretting that you ever tried it, and all that.'

'But what has that got to do with my marrying again?'

'You don't want to repeat your misery, do you, my dear?'

'Of course I don't; but you see I wouldn't have to have you, Topnoody, for my second husband.'

Topnoody looked across the table at her, but she kept straight ahead with her work, and he relapsed into silence.

The Millheim Journal.

THURSDAY, JAN. 20TH, 1887.

Published by R. A. BUMILLER.

EX-LIEUT. GOV. Charles W. Stone, of Warren, has accepted the portfolio of Secretary of the Commonwealth under Governor Beaver.

SENATOR WOLVERTON, of Northumberland, was selected by the democrats of both houses of the legislature as the candidate to receive the democratic vote for United States Senator. Of course it stops right there, as the Republicans are in the majority and elect Matthew S. Quay to go in place of Wolverton. Sad but true.

AMONG the several candidates spoken of for the mayorship of Philadelphia, John Wanamaker, the merchant prince, is the most prominent The idea is that an Independent shall head the municipal ticket with a democratic nominee for Receiver of Taxes if the ticket is to win. The nomination of Mr. Wanamaker would certainly draw a large vote from Republican business men and his well-known executive ability makes him the man best adapted to carry out the provisions of the new city charter.

PRINCE Bismark's army bill, providing for an increase of the standing army and necessary appropriations for the maintenance of the same, so as to be safe in case of war with Germany's rank enemy, France, was defeated in the Reichstag at Berlin, and that body immediately adjourned. Whenever the European war ministers become fidgety about armies and ammunition it may be put down as a settled thing that somebody is spiling for a fight. Things out there look as if Europe's peace might be shaken at any moment.

DAVITT, the father of the Irish land league, and a fine lecturer, addressed an enthusiastic audience, numbering about twenty-five hundred people in Music Hall, Philadelphia, the other night. The meeting was precided over by Attorney-General Cassidy. Mr. Davitt spoke of the present gloomy outlook in Ireland, where evictions are numerous and are conducted in the most cruel manner. But bright prospects are ahead for poor, abused Ireland. The very outrages committed under landlordism are making converts in England for home rule and the Irish people have more reason to be hopeful for better times than ever.

THE inauguration of Governor Beaver at Harrisburg on Tuesday was fittingly gone through with. The city was beautifully and richly decorated and the various organizations on hand to participate in a grand parade upon the hard frozen streets formed at 11.30 a. m. The inauguration ceremonies took place in the House of Representatives at 12 o'clock, Chief Justice Mercur administering the oath. After delivering his inaugural address Gov. Jas. A. Beaver viewed from the front of the executive mansion the procession of 10.000 people marching past in parade. It was a gala time and it is said that this occasion far exceeded former inaugurations in splendor.

THE following three gentlemen will compose Governor Beaver's cabinet and their names have been sent to the senate: Charles W. Stone, of Warren, Secretary of Commonwealth, W. S. Kirkpatrick, of Northampton, Attorney General, and D. H. Hastings, of Bellefonte, Adjutant General. All these gentlemen are considered as thoroughly competent for their positions and will make trusty advisers to the new governor. Mr. Stone has presided over the Senate as Lieut. Governor and has some legislative experience. Judge Kirkpatrick served a brief term as President Judge of the Northampton bar very creditably and has the necessary legal attainments for the office of Attorney General. Col. Hastings surely is the best looking member of the cabinet with a fine military appearance and is a devoted and personal friend of the governor.

AUDITOR GENERAL Niles' annual report of the state finances gives the receipts for the fiscal year ending Nov. 30th, 1886 at $7,520,711,13, expenditures $7,203,295,42 leaving a balance of $2,101,457,57 in the treasury. He severely criticises the inequalities and inconsistencies of the present revenue laws and calls attention to the fact that the auditor general is general auditor only in name as he disburses by his own warrants only about 47 per cent. of all the state moneys annually expended, the other state officers drawing the amounts necessary for their departments independently. This makes it impossible for the auditor to make a detailed statement of receipts and expenditures of the state at any given time.

CHAS. B. FARWELL was nominated by the republicans of the Illinois legislature for United Stated Senator, to fill Gen Logan's unexpired term.

AMONG the bills introduced in the house of the state legislature on Monday were the following: By Mr. Collins a liquor license bill which provides for a board for granting licenses in each county, consisting of the County Commissioners, the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions and one Magistrate, Alderman or Justice of the Peace, and that the person to whom the license is granted, the owner of the house licensed and two freeholders shall give $1000 bail each. A bill by Mr. Brooks regulating the sale of intoxicating liquors. By Mr. Shoewalter, forbidding the sale of tobacco, cigars or cigarettes to persons under the age of eighteen. A concurrent resolution, presented by W. F. Stewart, providing for a committee of five members of the House and two Senators to investigate the management of the soldiers' orphans' schools was adopted.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18, 1887.

The passage of the great Inter State Commerce bill, which is the result of a popular movement beginning twenty years ago, marks the past week in Congress. There was a good deal of important legislation besides this, however, such as that giving the Agricultural Department Executive importance and its chief a seat in the Cabinet; that extirpating the hierarchy at Salt Lake City, and that doubling the militia appropriation for the year. This last act will doubtless be well received everywhere; for the time has come when it is acknowledged that the citizen soldiery of the land ought to receive more attention than has even yet been shown them.

It was egpected that the Senate would settle the vexed question of Commerce by Railroads as it did, about the hour of midnight on Friday, but no one knew how many more Senators would be found supporting than opposing the bill. It came triumphantly through by a vote of forty-three to fifteen, although a number of Senators who voted for the measure were dissatisfied with it. These decided to set aside their own views and follow the dictates of their constituents, saying in this instance, where legislation is necessarily experimental, it is safe to give the people the benefit of the doubt.

The Interstate Comerce bill was framed and pressed forward by men who were mostly honest in their effort to relieve the people, but there are a good many legislators who doubt its efficacy. Some say the railroads will put up their through freights instead of reducing their way freights, and thus insure the equality which the law demands.

Now that the Anti-Mormon bill has been passed by the House, one hears a good many comments which indicate an appreciation of the severity of the measure. It not only makes polygamy a felony, but dissolves the financial corporations known as the Latter Day Saints, and the Perpetual Emigration Fund Company, and practically abolishes all the machinery, religious or political, that is now employed directly or indirectly in the maintenance of the Mormon Church system. There are differences of opinion as to the wisdom and justice of the policy, but the friends of the measure just passed assume that the malady is of such a terrible nature as to require heroic treatment. Its opponents say it would be better to wait upon the slow attractions of time and the pressure of public opinion to wear the evil out.

The Republicans pledged themselves to eradicate polygamy in 1856, more than thirty years ago. They held power for nearly a quarter of a century and as Mormonism still flourishes it is left for the Democrats to perform a duty which the Republicans neglected or else could not do. Of course everybody desires that the "twin relic of barbarism" shall be destroyed, if it can be done without straining the Constitution. Hon. Randolph Tucker, of Va., who reported the Anti-Mormon bill, held that there was nothing in it that could hurt the conscience even of a Mormon. If he thought there was, he said he would vote against it.

The State reception at the White House on Thursday evening was gorgeous in the gold lace of the guests of honor, the Diplomatic Corps, with music, gaslight, flowers and plams on every side, a crush of richly costumed women and a crowd of famous men, many of them in brilliant uniforms. Besides the official world of the Capital, about sixty persons in private life were invited to the reception. Among these was noticed Mrs. Frank Leslie, and it was difficult to decide whether she or Mrs. Stanford, the wife of the Senator from California, wore the largest or the finest or the greatest number of diamonds.

Charles E. Wilson, a Huntingdon county youth of 16 summers, weighs 200 pounds and stands 6 feet 5 inches.

Miscellaneous News.

Thos. J. Cluverius, who murdered his cousin, Miss Fannie L. Madison, on the 14th of March, 1885, was hanged for his crime in Richmond, Va., last Friday.

John Wilson, the confessed murderer of Anthony W. Dealy, was executed at Norristown last Thursday. He made a long speech on the scaffold before being hanged, in which he blamed rum for his sad fate.

A young couple went to a Lancaster minister to get married. When the man answered "yes" the preacher smelled whiskey on him, and refused to proceed with the ceremony. They went elsewhere to have the knot tied.

Chairman Hensel's Successor.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 15.—Dallas Sanders will have a competitor for chairman of the Democratic State committee in Edward Kerr, of Bedford, Corporation Clerk under Auditor General Schell. The committee will meet in this city next Wednesday.

—JUST SO. The wise and prudent man now procures a bottle of Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine and keeps it in the house to be prepared for croup and whooping-cough emergencies. It never fails. It never disappoints. Instructions for treatment of croup and whooping-cough on each wrapper. Nothing like it for colds and all lung troubles. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money returned.

Ex Senator Laird Perhaps Fatally Hurt.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 15.—The veteran editor and proprietor of the Pennsylvania Argus, ex-Senator H. P. Laird, who is in the 87th year of his age, met with a probably fatal accident at noon to-day. While walking on the icy pavement he fell in front of the residence of his son, Captain James M. Laird, striking his head on the stone step. He was carried home on a stretcher, where he now lies in a very precarious condition. The fall caused paralysis of his lower limbs.

Robbers on Board.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 16.—Five masked robbers boarded a Pan Handle freight train near Sheridan station, just at the outskirts of the city, Friday night, but they were detected in the act of throwing freight from the moving train, and in a desperate fight which ensued, fireman Curley was shot through the right thigh, and a brakeman was knocked senseless with a stone. The trainmen then gave up the fight to attend to the injured men and the thieves escaped. The train was loaded with merchandise and express matter.

Four Claimants for one Reward.

CHESTER, Jan. 14.—There are four claimants for the reward offered for the arrest and conviction of the murderer of John Sharpless and each one is pressing the County Commissioners for the money; but that body will make no award until after the Supreme Court passes on the case, and not then if the defendant is given a new trial, which many think will be the result. The claimants are an Upland citizen, a North Chester borough policeman, Special Officer Alexander and Reporter Curley, of the Philadelphia Record.

One of Carlisle's Justices Convicted

CARLISLE, January 14.—The case of 'Squire Martin, indicted for the commitment of children to the County Jail as vagrants, with hard labor, was concluded this morning. Judge Sadler charged the jury just before noon. At 2 p. m. they came into court with a verdict of guilty. Sentence is deferred. The defense have filed an exception to the Judge's charge. The case of 'Squire James A. Green, charged with the same misdemeanor in office, has been held over until the March term of court. The verdict gives general satisfaction.

The Two Coming Centennials.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The Senate special committee on centennial celebrations to day decided, with reference to the centennial of the promulgation of the Constitution, that the celebration shall consist of an address and some civic and military displays, the details of which are to be settled hereafter. With respect to the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America, it was decided to recommend that a joint committee of the two houses be raised to take the subject of an appropriate celebration in 1892 into consideration.

Land Returned to the Government

DES MOINES, Iowa, Jan. 14.—Gov. Larrabee has certified back to the national government 26,017 acres of land situated in the counties of Plymouth, Woodbury and Osceola. This land, together with other thousands of acres, was granted to the state for the purpose of assisting the construction of certain railways. The state in turn granted it to the Sioux City and Pacific Railroad conditionally on the company fulfilling certain stipulated contracts. The obligations imposed upon the railway before the land could be patented have never been fulfilled.

The readers of the JOURNAL will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known in the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucus surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength, by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The Proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars, for any case it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address,

A Captain's Fortunate Discovery.

Capt. Coleman, schr. Weymouth, plying between Atlantic City and N. Y., had been troubled with a cough so that he was unable to sleep, and was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. It not only gave him instant relief, but allayed the extreme soreness in his breast. His children were similarly affected and a single dose had the same happy effect. Dr. King's New Discovery is now the standard remedy in the Coleman household and on board the schooner.

McQuade Goes Up.

NEW YORK, January 16.—McQuade must go to Sing Sing to-morrow morning. The clerk sent out by Mr. Martine returned with the order vacating the stay of proceedings signed by Justice Pratt. The document was filed with the county clerk, and a copy served upon the sheriff. When a reporter called at the Tombs prison he found Barney McQuade there. He said that his brother did not feel depressed in spirits by Justice Pratt's decision, and at his near removal to Sing Sing. He said that he had been prepared for such a result, and bowed to the inevitable.

—MUST GO. The horrible nauseous worm-seed compounds called vermifuges and worm syrups, many of them as worthless as they are obnoqious, have had their day. It's downright cruelty to compel a child to take them, when McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders, so easy and pleasant to take that children will take them and never know a medicine is being administered, can be procured for the small sum of twenty-five cents. Any case of failure to cause expulsion where worms exist, the money promptly refunded.

SOLD AT A SACRIFICE!

The Holidays are past, but a lot of holiday goods remain on our hands, and we will sell these goods at a

SACRIFICE.

What we wish to say to our customers is this: That we are going to sell cheaper than ever before.

WHY?

First—Because this is a dull season in general. But we are going to make it lively by selling goods way down and selling much.

Second—Because we have a big supply of winter goods on hand, that must be sold in order to make room for a spring stock.

Third—Because we can afford better to sell winter goods cheap than carry them over the saason.

Fourth—Because we have the "Swing" and are bound to keep it.

We have anything from a needle to a hogshead of molasses—a good Sewing Machine or a house and lot.

—We sympathize with our friend, F. O. Hosterman, the postmaster at Fiedler, Haines township, in the loss of his only child by death, mention of which is made in the Aaronsburg items.

—The number of tenant houses in Millheim seems inadequate to the demand. Some of our enterprising and wealthy citizens should build a few dozen houses. There is still room.

—A gentleman from Shamokin, by the name of Haas, was here last week with the intention of buying J. W. Snook's store business. Up to this writing however the store is not sold.

—The appeal of the editors of the Keystone Gazette, Bellefonte, to their patrons, reached us too late for publication last week. We insert it this week and hope those addressed will respond readily.

—Ex-Governor Curtin has had an operation performed on his right eye, which had been sightless for 20 years. The operation was successful and Hon. Curtin again rejoices in the possession of two good eyes.

—The many friends of Mrs. Margaret Stover, residing with her daughter Mrs. Geo. Ulrich on Main street, will be sorry to hear that the old lady's health is not good at all and that most of her time she is confined to bed.

LOST.—Henry Reinhart, Esq., dropped a Rubber coat between this place and Coburn, going home by the Pine Creek road. The finder will receive a reward of $1.00 by returning it to the owner near Woodward, or by leaving it at this office.

—Soon the time will be here when people think of going west. If in need of a good Trunk or Satchel go to J. W. Stover's, on Main street. It will be to your interest to examine his stock of trunks and satchels and learn his prices before going elsewhere.

—Irvin J. Miller, who about two years ago emigrated to Castleton, Gunnison Co., Colo., and who is a son of Daniel Miller of Woodward, Pa., writes us that he is a Colorado cow boy and is getting $60 a month and board. He says he is getting along swimmingly.

—The Abilene Daily Gazette says that Rev. J. A. Bright, of Abilene, Kansas, was recently elected Chaplain of the House of Representatives of the state of Kansas. Rev. Bright being a former Centre countian this will be a pleasing piece of news to his friends hereabouts.

—During Prof. George P. Bible's engagement at the Normal school in Lock Haven, the local columns of the Centre Democrat, Bellefonte, are under the charge of J. Swavely the foreman of the office. That department will certainly not suffer in the hands of Mr. Swavely, as he is a good local scribe.

—The council committee on revision of borough ordinances is busily engaged in their work and we may soon look for a clear and comprehensive set of ordinances which are to be printed and distributed in a convenient form. And next in order will be the strict enforcement of the corrected boro law.

—The new advertisement of the Millheim Marble Works appears in this issue. Messrs. Musser & Alexander, the wide-awake proprietors, wish the public to know that they are still pushing the marble business for all it's worth and that means that they furnish the best work at the lowest prices.

—Our townsman John Swartz, of North street, pulled stakes on Monday and moved to a place seven miles northwest of Laurelton, Union county. We are sorry to lose John, as he has always been a good and progressive citizen and a wholesouled fellow. We wish him the best success in his new home.

Renews Her Youth.

Mrs. Phoebe Chesley, Peterson, Clay Co., Iowa, tells the following remarkable story, the truth of which is vouched for by the residents of the town: "I am 73 years old, have been troubled with kidney complaint and lameness for many years; could not dress myself without help. Now I am free from all pain and soreness, and am able to do all my own housework. I owe my thanks to Electric Bitters for having renewed my youth, and removed completely all disease and pain."

—Constipation has many victims, and the endeavor to find relief with the cathartic, the injection, the aparient and laxative are distressing. These are resorted to time and again, until the sufferer is almost in despair, as he gains only a brief respite.

By taking Simmons Liver Regulator, the bowels will be gently moved as naturally as if no medicine had been taken. Regularity in taking the medicine will soon effect a permanent relief.

DEATH OF B. W. THOMPSON, MIFFLINBURG.—Yesterday's Mifflinburg Telegraph contains an account of the death of Benjamin W. Thompson, an old and much respected citizen of that place, which occurred on last Friday morning. Deceased was born in Mifflinburg in June 1814 and at the time of his death had reached the age of 72 years, 7 months and 10 days. Mr Thompson was engaged in the furniture and undertaking business since 1852 and also in the marble business for 32 years. He took a prominent and lively interest in all the enterprises of that town and helped to organize the Mifflinburg Bank, of which he was a director. For 33 years he was steward in the M. E. church and was a consistent christian and honorable man. The funeral took place on Tuesday.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

THE BEST SALVE in the world for Cuts, Bruises, Sores, Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Tetter, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Corns, and all Skin Eruptions, and positively cures Piles, or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfaction, or money refunded. Price 25 cents per box. For sale by J. Eisenhuth.

—Once in a while a streak of luck will hit an editor and Bro. Shoch, of the Mifflinburg Telegraph was the lucky man this time. He has been appointed head messenger of the House at Harrisburg at a salary rating at six dollars per day. So much for being a strong supporter of General Beaver. We congratulate Mr. Shoch upon his raise.

—Having received a new card and paper cutter and a complete outfit for binding Blank Books, Pamphlets, Tablets, &c. we are now prepared to run out job work of every description on short notice, well executed and at very reasonable prices. Call on us when in need of posters, handbills, business blanks, invitations, or anything in the job line.

—Charles Horner, of Altoona, a son of William Horner, of Centre Hall, died on Monday evening, aged 18 years. His foot had been crushed by a stone falling upon it while quarrying on the 18th of December. Amputation of the limb became necessary but his system was so depleted that he could not rally from the operation and after much suffering died. His remains were brought to Centre Hall for burial.

—Not Extensive advertising but genuine merit has placed McDonald's Improved Liver Pills at the head of the list, the most exacting, scrupulous care exercised in selection of materials, the highest attainable chemical skill employed in their manufacture, and sold on an honest guarantee. Any dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded.

—We buy all our boots and shoes direct from the manufacturers, hence pay no agent's commissions and give the benefit of it all to our customers.
J. H. MUSSER & SON.

The above we think fully explains how shoes can be sold at such unaccountable low prices, and people should not hesitate and think the shoes an inferior article because they are so cheap.

—Thus far there are about twenty applicants for positions in the Knitting factory in course of erection at this place. Since our last issue the place for setting up several of the machines provisorily has been changed to Luse's planing mill, where some of the steam power can be used to run the shaftings. The machines are on the road and are daily expected at the station.

—With Prof. A. N. Bierly as conductor, and Miss Sallie Hoffer, the accomplished organist from Bellefonte, it may be taken for granted that the convention in the M. E. church at Spring Mills, beginning next Monday, Jan. 24th, will be a grand success in every way. There will be two concerts, Friday and Saturday evening. A few Millheim singers expect to be in attendance.

—Every day adds to the great amount of evidence as to the curative powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Letters are constantly being received from all sections of the country, telling of benefits derived from this great medicine. It is unequalled for general debility, and as a blood purifier, expelling every trace of scrofula or other impurity. Now is the time to take it. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by all druggists.

SOMETHING NEW.—Some of Millheim's more talented young men organized themselves into what is called the "Thespian Club" for the porpose of giving variety shows. The troupe consists of six members and they expect to give theie first entertainment at Rebersburg next Saturday evening. They are wise in starting away from home, as Millheim is renowned for furnishing small audiences for such affairs and the boys would very likely meet little encouragement and "bust" in the start.

—The first coasting accident we heard of in this town happened to Vernon Rook on Thursday evening. He came down the icy pavement on Main street hill with other boys, when the sled took a sudden turn and ran against one of the porches. His leg struck the corner of the porch, and he sustained a fracture of the small bone of his right leg. He is now lying at the National hotel under treatment and is doing tolerably well. The night of the accident was very dark, which with the narrowness of the pavement, made the sport exceedingly dangerous and it is a wonder that none of his companions were hurt.

—The necessity for more school room in this borough becomes more perceptible every season, and if, as is the probability, Millheim's population will increase with the arrival of new industries and the natural influx of laboring people, some provisions will have to be made before another year passes for the accomodation of additional pupils. Would it not be policy for the school-board to take this matter in consideration at an early day? For sanitary reasons, if for nothing else, our school-rooms should not be permitted to be overcrowded and we are sure that a majority of our citizens will endorse any action the board may take to remedy this unsatisfactory state of affairs. A new school building, containing six rooms, with an average seating capacity of 50, would be the proper thing.

To the Patrons of the "Keystone Gazette."

The disastrous conflagration which consumed the Bush Arcade, one of Bellefonte's most imposing business blocks, on Sunday morning, Jan. 9th, swept away every vestage of the Keystone Gazette printing establishment, not a scrap of paper that could aid us in re establishing our business relations with our patrons being saved. The insurance, at this writing unadjusted, was $2,000, which represents but a small portion of the financial loss we have sustained, but relying upon the friendly co-operation which has hitherto been extended, we confidentially appeal to our friends to come to our assistance in this hour of disaster. The loss of our subscription books leaves us without any means—except our memory and the aid that the post-masters may be able to render, to restore our circulation, and we request that all persons who have been receiving the paper immediately report the fact, with the date when their subscription began. We have never asked our patrons for money, the voluntary advances received with our regular commercial business enabling us to meet current demands without embarrassment, but this unlooked for emergency compells us to ask that financial sympathy without which resumption of business will prove exceedingly difficult if not impossible. If what we have earned and is now past due is promptly paid, we shall within a very brief time renew our visits to our patrons in better form than that which vanished in smoke in the disaster which involved us with many of our immediate neighbors in most disheartening misfortune.

We have opened an office in the room next door to Hastings & Reeder's law office, opposite the post office, where we shall be pleased to receive our friends.

COBURN.

There has been quite a change in the weather the last few days.

Work is to commence on the new mill this week and is to be pushed along rapidly until completed.

Cassler's mill is to be moved here and set up.

J. F. Torbert, of Williamsport, spent several days here this week.

The railroad carpenters who have been repairing the bridges along the railroad and been boarding at the Forks House, left for Newberry on Wednesday last.

A. J. Campbell was called away last Saturday by the death of a brother in Snydertown, Pa.

We heard considerable comment made on our article in last week's Journal. Some seem to think that any one living in a place should not write such an item. We think it was proper and not half strong enough. We try to give the news of the place and should anything come under our notice which is of interest, or effects the place, we will give it whether it pleases all or not. It is impossible to please all and there are always those who find fault with everything, and in our opinion, those who talked the most were the ones who were hit the hardest.

The lumber and timber shipping is slack at our station, owing to the numerous strikes and shutting down of the mines.

Very few availed themselves of the cheap rates from here to Harrisburg to attend the inauguration on Tuesday. Two cars filled with students from State College passed through here en route for Harrisburg.

Our evening and morning mail is a great convenience to the public, and postmaster Vonada informs us that the mail matter is increasing daily. VALE.

AARONSBURG.

We had the tail end of a Kansas blizzard on last Monday evening.

B. F. Burd made his first ingathering of cream in this district for the Spring Mills creamery last week.

Miss Annie Hoover who for the last few years has been living in Illinois is at present here visiting her relatives and friends. Anna says she enjoys excellent health. We would judge so by her appearance.

Dr. John Bright, of Rebersburg, Pa., who had been visiting his brother, Prof. J. W. Bright, of the John Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md. has returned, as we saw him in our burg last week.

Maudie, infant daughter of F. O. and Aquilla Hosterman died last week and was buried on Sunday morning in the St. Paul burial ground, Rev. Deitzler conducted the services.

Solomon Wise, of Illinois, is at present visiting his mother, the widow Wise and other near relatives in this place. The aged mother is at this writing confined to her room with dropsy, from which disease she suffers extremely at times.

Miss Mary Boyer, sister of Samuel Boyer, residing on the John Guiswite place below town, died at her brother's house on last Monday morning. She was buried yesterday (Wednesday) forenoon in the Wolf's school house burial ground, Rev. Deitzler officiating. Deceased died of typhoid fever.

The attendance at the protracted meeting which Rev. Deitzler conducts in the Lutheran church has been unusually large up to this time. On last Sunday evening the audience room was crowded to its utmost capacity. The meeting on that evening was very interesting and the singing was exceptionally good. The selections are nearly all taken from the Gospel Hymns.

The team which run away from the Lutheran church last Sunday evening and which belonged to Jacob Neidigh, from near Woodward, was found after services in the lane leading through Em'l. Bower's farm, south of town. The horses had run into a large snow drift and could go no further. They were easily captured and everything was found in O.K. order. The question is, did the horses tear loose through fright or some other accident or did those boys who were engaged in unbecoming conduct that same evening loosen the team and cause the runaway. If so we hope the guilty parties will be found. ANOTHER.

SMITH TOWN.

Convention this week in the Salem's church, two miles west of this place. This will bring lots of visitors to our people.

Henry Keen came home from Stone Valley with but one horse. He reports horses as scarce.

Newton E. Weaver was visiting at Danl. Bressler's over Sunday.

Mrs. Sarah Smith disposed of her cow and chickens and moved to Millheim to reside with her son, J. C. Smith.

Last Wednesday evening a party from Brushvalley was entertained by F. P. Duck and wife.

On the same evening a large party of about 30 guests partook of an oyster supper at Henry Keen's residence.

On Sunday evening while W. F. Smith and family were to preaching at Millheim his horse took sick, but by some doctoring he got him so that they could drive home, though at a late hour.

Miss Funk, of Penns Creek, spent a week with her sister, Mrs. Wm. Stover.

Last week Al. Keen filled the ice house on Harter's farm, Aaronsburg, where he expects to move next Spring.
JUMBO.

SPRING MILLS.

Geo. A. Runk, Esq., one of our most energetic men is again off to the West on business.

Supt. D. M. Wolf is out visiting schools.

The creamery in this place is a success They manufactnre nothing but the finest kind of butter, which meets with ready sale. Farmers are beginning to realize that they get more for their cream than they could for the butter.

PENN HALL.

Convention this week.

Mr. R. B. Bartges, who is clerking at the Penns Cave House, spent Saturday and Sunday at home with his mother and many friends. Always glad to see you, Bob.

Rev. Deitzler, (Luth.) was unable to fill his appointment at this place last Sunday on account of a funeral at St. Paul.

Mr. Henry Kintzel, of McVeytown, Pa. had been here last week visiting friends and french cousins.

Among other changes under the Cleveland administration the new letter box at the Penn Hall post office is by no means the least. The old and faithful postmaster is always desirous to accomodate the public and deserves credit for his enterprise. May his spirit for improvements continue in the same strain.

Mr. Frank Haines was seen in town last week.

The debating society last Friday evening was well attended. The subject "Resolved that a person can learn more by traveling than by reading" was ably discussed, the negative side winning the day. Next meeting Friday eve, Feb. 28.

Mr. F. D. Hosterman bought the tract of land, known as the Snyder timberland, at $2.00 per acre.

The pleasant countenances of Miss May Hartman and Miss Alice Ulrich, of Millheim, were noticed on our streets last Sunday.

Quite a number from this place attended Lutheran preaching at Aaronsburg last Sunday evening.
DENVER DAN.

MADISONBURG.

E. Shafer, of Bellefonte, spent Sunday and Monday with his parents, Mr. & Mrs. S. B. Shafer.

Thos. J. Shafer is using a set of Shearwood's Novelty Steel Harness. He is agent for this convenient article.

Rev. Basom started a protracted meeting in the Evangelical church on Sunday evening.

John Hoy, Sr., died on Friday evening at the residence of A. H. Vonada, two miles west of town, at the ripe old age of 92 years. He was sick but a few days. The funeral took place on Sunday when his remains were interred in the Reformed cemetery in this place

Mrs. Daniel Limbert has been in Sugar Valley for the last two weeks visiting friends.

Prof. Bierly closed his singing in this place on Tuesday evening.

The supposed tramp caused quite a sensation in town last Thursday evening about 10 o'clock. After S. B. S. investigated the matter he found it to be one of his neighbors. No arrest was made.

P. C. Frank will make sale of his farm stock and move into James Wert's tenant house. Mr. Frank has taken an agency for E. B. Richardson & Co's Kanadesaga Nurseries, Geneva, N. Y.

REBERSBURG.

The other day while Samuel Strohecker was out fox hunting he was lucky enough to find three raccoons in a hollow tree. Sam killed them and returned home very much pleased with his hunt.

Uriah Slatherbeck the other day bought a fine horse and sleigh.

Geo. Brechbill is at present engaged in putting two new machines in his workshop. They will prove of great value to him in his trade.

Rev Lenhart, (Lutheran), is at present holding a protracted meeting in this place.

J. K. Hosterman is making preparations to remodel his home.

Thomas Wolf, who was off to Nittany on a three week's visit has returned and seems well pleased with his visit.

The relief committee which canvassed this valley, gathering up eatables, clothing, &c. for the Fisher family, who were lately burned out, met with good success. The good people contributed very liberally, thereby displaying their sympathy for the afflicted.
SQUIBOB.

Did you ever stand over a wash-tub in which clothes were being washed with common brown rosin soaps? If so, try Dreydoppel's Borax Soap next wash day, and note the difference. The best is the cheapest.

WOODWARD.

The steam saw mill, three miles below this place, with the two houses erected in close proximity present a very home-like appearance. The occupants moved in last Monday.

During convention week our village put on metropolitan airs. The attendance throughout was large. Prof. Kleckner in his selections for the concert showed his efficiency as a teacher, as the music was decidedly difficult. The duet "The song the swallows sing," by Mrs. Jos. Kleckner and Miss Ida Herlacher was exceptionally good. We feel proud of our home talent. The exquisite sweetness of Miss Rebecca Young's voice needed to be heard to be admired. We could also mention the attainments of the two Miss Stovers, daughters of Wm. K. and John C. Stover. Mr. Lowell Meyer was here, as everywhere else, the humorous star, for who could hear his songs without laughter. The class numbered 85 and the proceeds amounted to $90.25. We congratulate Prof. Kleckner on the proficiency of his large class.

The body of Mrs. Moyer, who died on the 10th instant, was interred in the Woodward cemetery by the side of her husband and son on Wednesday of last week at 10 o'clock a. m., there to await the resurrection and the coming of Him in whom she had her trust.
ARGENTI.

DIED

The subject of this notice was born in the eastern part of the state. In his early manhood he settled in the vicinity in which he closed his career. He was one of the oldest, if not the oldest citizen in Miles township. His last illness continued only a short time having been taken sick suddenly on the Tuesday previous to the day of his death. He was the father of 15 children, of whom only one—Mrs. Benjamin Roush, of Madisonburg, is still living. On last Sunday his remains were interred in the new Reformed cemetery in the presence of a large concourse of people. He had been a life-long member of the Reformed church. D.

The Oft Told Story

Of the peculiar medicinal merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla is fully confirmed by the voluntary testimony of thousands who have tried it. Peculiar in the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, peculiar in the extreme care with which it is put up, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in the unequalled good name it has made at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained, is the most popular and successful medicine before the public today for purifying the blood, giving strength, creating an appetite.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"I suffered from wakefulness and low spirits, and also had eczema on the back of my head and neck, which was very annoying. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I have received so much benefit that I am very grateful, and I am always glad to speak a good word for this medicine." MRS. J. S. SNYDER, Pottsville, Penn.

Purifies the Blood

Henry Biggs, Campbell Street, Kansas City, had scrofulous sores all over his body for fifteen years. Hood's Sarsaparilla completely cured him.

Wallace Buck, of North Bloomfield, N. Y., suffered eleven years with a terrible varicose ulcer on his leg, so bad that he had to give up business. He was cured of the ulcer, and also of catarrh, by

A VISITATION OF GOD.

Calling on God to Paralyze Him—The Challenge Answered.

DOUGLAS, Ga., Jan. 10.—"I hope that God may paralyze me," were the words spoken by William Burkett. At once his hands dropped to his side, his legs refused to move, and his eyes rolled wildly around. His prayer was answered, as he stood paralyzed on the spot where but a few moment before he was a magnificent type of physical manhood. He tried to speak, but his tongue would not move. Half a dozen men, who were present were rendered motionless by the evident visitation of the hand of God. When they recovered self possession they tenderly moved the afflicted man to his residence, a half mile distant. When Miss Rhody Burkett saw the plight in which her father was brought home, she screamed and fainted, and died a few days later.

For years Mr. Burkett had been the ferryman at the Hawkinsville road crossing of the Ocmulgee River. He was of giant physique, with long gray locks, and became especially noted because of the brace of revolvers which he kept strapped to his waist. He was a great hunter, and the ferry being in the midst of a swamp he was convenient to an abundance of game. From those who lived around him it is learned that he is fearfully profane. Whenever he sighted game and was called off he would pour out such a volley of oaths as would make the flesh of ordinary men crawl. It was while in one of these profane spells he cursed his Creator, and wound up with the expression above quoted.

The news soon spread throughout the country, and scores of people called to see the victim. He was at first completely prostrated, but subsequently was enabled to take a few steps, when he would fall. When spoken to he replies in an inarticulate mumble, and acts in the most idiotic manner. The physicians can ascribe no natural cause for his affliction, but admit that it is a visitation of God. The preachers in the neighborhood have used the incident in their sermons with great effect.

A Sister's Bequest.

An Interesting Story Related in the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court yesterday heard a pathetically interesting story which surrounded the law point involved in the appeal of Mary Magoohan from the decree of the Orphan's Court, which awarded distribution of the estate of her sister, Annie, wife of William C. Fitzpatrick. In anticipation of her maternity Annie Fitzpatrick left $1,800 to her sister, accompanying the gift with these directions: "In case my child lives save the principal for it and use the interest as you please. See that the child gets a proper education, and do not let it want for anything you can give it. In case it dies you will have the money and no one will know anything about it." The child died soon after its mother, and the father claimed the money under the interstate laws as heir to the child.

The Orphans' Court held that the sister could not have taken the money unless the child had died during its mother's lifetime, and that as the child survived the gift became absolute, and at its death the money went to the father. It was claimed for the sister, in the argument on the appeal, that the words "in case it dies you will have the money and no one will know anything about it" fairly indicated an intention to will the money to the sister in the event of the child's death. The Supreme Court reserved its opinion on the case.—Philada. Times.

Every-day Religion.

Every-day religion is the foundation of thoroughness, which is another word for truthfulness or honesty. Workmen that slight their work, whether they make shirts for a living or sermons, build houses or ships, raise flocks or raise families, will be some day or other found out. We want clothes that will not rip, vessels that will not leak, and bridges that will not break down. So we want characters that will stand temptation, and not snap asunder under the sudden pressures of life.
